

Hulk Hogan Brings Hulkamania to Stereo Vision's Martial Arts Comedy Kung Fu U 3D.

Business Wire: March 17, 200

Hollywood -- Stereo Vision Entertainment, Inc. (OTCBB: SVSN), a film production company focused exclusively on developing high quality, low cost, polarized 3D feature films, announced today that Hulk Hogan has been signed to star in its independent production of Kung Fu U 3D. Stereo Vision's Chief Executive Officer, Jack Honour, stated, "I'm very happy to report that Hulk Hogan has agreed to star in our martial arts comedy, Kung Fu U 3D. Along with his enormous worldwide following of Hulkamaniacs, he has the hottest reality show on television right now with American Gladiators, and we're thrilled to have him bringing all of that energy and enthusiasm to our Kung Fu U 3D project. Stereo Vision's Chairman, Doug Schwartz, has worked with Hulk Hogan on several feature films in the past including Assault on Devils Island, Shadow Warriors, and their big hit together, Thunder in Paradise."

Stereo Vision's Chairman and Chief Production Officer, Baywatch creator Doug Schwartz, commented, "Kung Fu U 3D is the story of a bunch of nerds and misfits that are sent away by their wealthy parents to the Brentwood Academy, (a.k.a. Kung Fu U) to learn the finer arts of self defense. It's a heart warming romp where the somewhat weathered warriors come to the rescue for the kids, and in turn, the kids rescue the warriors' souls from what had been their eternal apathy. It's a feel-good story that reminds us that we're all the same, no matter what our age, and that we should all stick together. We plan to film the PG-rated Kung Fu U 3D in Louisiana, taking advantage of their 25% rebate plan. We plan to release Kung Fu U 3D by Spring of '09."
